Dear Graduates,

Your spring semester and graduation didn’t exactly turn out the way anyone expected, did it? Your professors, TAs, and advisors in the Department of Psychology really, really wish that we could have given you the in-person celebrations that you and your family were looking forward to. But it turned out that this was just not the year for normalcy.

That’s really unfortunate, but I see a small silver lining. Because of the huge disruptions in your lives this spring, you have been enormously challenged, and you came through it with flying colors. Think about this: you worked hard for years toward graduation, and just when you were in the very, very final steps of this journey, a pandemic came to disrupt almost every aspect of what it meant to be a student and a graduating senior. And yet, you did it! You graduated!

Use what you know from being a Psychology major and realize how important this is. Take your critical thinking skills, your knowledge of human behavior, and consider the benefits of succeeding despite challenges. People who persevere through challenges know more about themselves. They know that they’ve already succeeded in the face of completely unexpected events and setbacks. They carry this knowledge forward, using it to fend off whatever discouragements or setbacks that might come in the future. One of those people is you!

We are all so proud of your accomplishments, through all of your years at UW and especially this year. We know that you’re equipped with knowledge, drive, and resilience to take your next steps. You’ve proved it. Congratulations.

Sincerely,

Maryellen MacDonald
Donald P. Hayes Professor of Psychology
Associate Chair for Undergraduate Studies
ABOUT THE DEPARTMENT

Founded in 1888, the Department of Psychology is proud to house one of the largest undergraduate majors in the College of Letters & Science at UW–Madison. Over the years, the department has focused on several areas in the field of Psychological Science, including biological, clinical, cognition & cognitive neuroscience, perception, developmental, and social & personality. Scientific Psychology is positioned well to influence critical issues through its strong interdisciplinary connections with the natural sciences, social sciences, humanities, and medical sciences. Throughout their undergraduate education, students develop the ability to think critically and quantitatively, enhance communication skills, and apply the science of psychology to the well-being of oneself and others while exploring these interdisciplinary connections. This education allows our alumni to take on the challenges of, and fully participate in, an increasingly complex, multicultural world.

Alan Sroufe, Professor Emeritus in the Institute of Child Development at the University of Minnesota, received his PhD in clinical psychology from the UW–Madison in 1967, and has served as Associate Editor of Developmental Psychology and Development and Psychopathology. An internationally recognized expert on early attachment relationships, emotional development, and developmental psychopathology, he has published 150 articles and 7 books on these topics, including The Development of the Person, a two-time award winner. His other awards include the Distinguished Scientific Contribution Award from the Society for Research in Child Development, the Bowlby-Ainsworth Award for Contributions to Attachment Research, the Mentor Award and the G. Stanley Hall Award for Distinguished Scientific Contribution to Developmental Psychology from Division 7 of the American Psychology Association, an honorary doctorate degree from the University of Leiden, and the Distinguished Teaching Award from the College of Education at University of Minnesota.

After attempting architecture and engineering, Aris Alexander, PhD, serendipitously found psychology to be the perfect fit (thank you, Leroy Luberg). UW–Madison bachelor’s, master’s, and doctorate degrees followed (thank you, Jack Gilchrist). A PHS Pre-Doctoral Fellowship awarded him by the psychology department was followed by a Post-Doctoral Fellowship granted by the UW psychiatry department (thank you, Norm Greenfield). After two years in the Air Force, he joined the psychiatry faculty in 1965 and retired in 1991. His academic, research, and clinical interests have been in psychophysiology, psychopathology, psychotherapy, cross-cultural psychiatry, and the economics and policies of mental health-care systems. Given the above, he has felt both very lucky and very grateful. Being in the right place at the right time with the right people has a lot to do with chance as well as circumstance. His support of the Departments of Psychology and Psychiatry is his way of providing those opportunities to others.
LINDA VAKUNTA ’09, MS’11, PHD’15
EARLY CAREER AWARD RECIPIENT
DEPUTY MAYOR, CITY OF MADISON

Linda Vakunta graduated from the psychology department at UW–Madison in 2009. She went on to receive a master’s in rehabilitation psychology and a doctorate from The Nelson Institute for Environmental Studies from UW–Madison. Vakunta served as executive director for Project1808, a Wisconsin-based non-profit organization promoting sustainable community development in Sierra Leone, for 10 years. Under her leadership, the organization grew to support 300-plus primary and secondary school students in their formal and non-formal education. She served as country coordinator for the Ebola Host Pathogen Response study in Sierra Leone from 2016-2017. She developed and implemented a vocational skills development-training program for Ebola survivors with funding from the US Embassy-Sierra Leone. Vakunta joined the City of Madison mayor’s office in June of 2019 to support housing, health, and human services work.

ZORBA PASTER ’69
APPLICATIONS OF PSYCHOLOGY AWARD RECIPIENT
MD, FAAFP, SSM HEALTH - DEAN CLINIC - OREGON
ADJUNCT PROFESSOR OF FAMILY MEDICINE AND COMMUNITY HEALTH
UW SCHOOL OF MEDICINE AND PUBLIC HEALTH

Zorba Paster received his undergraduate degree in psychology from UW-Madison, going on to earn an MD from the University of Illinois. He has worked as a family doctor for more than 40 years, has a long-running NPR show, “On Your Health,” appears regularly on News3 TV, and writes a weekly national medical health column. He reaches a quarter of a million people each week with his timely, upbeat, and entertaining medical, health, and wellness advice. Paster continuously emphasizes the importance of mental health and the role it plays, from detecting and treating disease to embracing wellness. He credits his time at the UW with giving him the vital foundation needed for his diverse and distinctive service in the field of medicine. “My psychology degree at the UW was the platform I needed, both in my practice and my media outreach. I could never have accomplished what I did without Wisconsin.”
With over 16,000 living psychology alumni across the globe, you are never far from “home.”

HONORS IN THE PSYCHOLOGY MAJOR

The Psychology Honors in the Major program provides students with deeper exploration of psychological concepts through classroom instruction as well as experience in research, culminating in an Honors Thesis project. The following students have earned Honors in the Major in psychology:

Taylor Barenbaum: Investigating the Social Factors That Influence Office Hours Attendance
Selin Gok: Anxiety and Learning in Dynamic Environments
Annika Hendrickson: The Effect of Vocal Emotion on Infant Word Learning
Nicole Huth: Reducing Children’s Racial Bias Through Parent-Led Interventions
Alexander Latham IV: Because I want to help people: Can a Prosocial Utility Value Intervention Increase Prosocial Motivation?
Anna Li: Impact of Order on Children’s Social Category Learning
Makayla Liebeck: Parents’ Perceptions of Children’s Racial Bias: The Role of Confirmation Bias
Rachel Posener: Are Psychology Students’ Attitudes Toward Statistics Related to Their Math Anxiety?
Zengbo Xie: Neural representation of information in working memory changing with its priority status
Lisa Larson: Examining the effects of meaningful choices in the utility value intervention

DISTINCTION IN THE PSYCHOLOGY MAJOR

Distinction in the Major recognizes students who have gone above and beyond within the Department of Psychology, either through in-depth honors coursework or completion of an undergraduate thesis, while maintaining high scholastic achievement.

The following graduates earned Distinction in the Major through completion of a thesis:

PSI CHI
The UW–Madison Chapter of Psi Chi, the International Honor Society in Psychology, displays the values of our department and the mission of the Psi Chi organization – to encourage, stimulate, and maintain excellence in scholarship and service. We created the 2020 newsletter to showcase the excellent writing and hard work of our talented members. We have donated time and raised funds and resources for local organizations including NAMI Dane County and The River Food Pantry. We hosted a lecture series featuring UW researchers and professors who spoke about their work in the field of psychology. Beyond all of our accomplishments this year, we are most proud to welcome our newly inducted Psi Chi members, whom we hope will make the most of their membership as a valuable part of the undergraduate education and experience.

Graduating Executive Board Members:
Annika Hendrickson, Grace Recla

PSYCH CLUB
The Psychology Club offers its members opportunities to get involved in the psychology department, to build relationships with peers and professionals, and to make a difference in the greater Madison community. To get involved in the department, we provide our members with resources and information regarding research labs, departmental courses, and major requirements. To build relationships, we connect our members with peers, faculty, and alumni through events such as movie nights, game nights, study sessions, panel discussions, and the annual Student-Alumni Networking Dinner. To help make a difference in the community, we provide clothing, food, and other necessities to local organizations such as Neighborhood House and Porchlight. Also, we collaborate with the National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI) and the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention (AFSP) each year to help spread awareness around the city and on campus.
